The recent Montreal excursion of the District union to Montreal was the text for a vigorous discussion. It was claimed List night that the contract with the Baltimore and Ohio railroad for Pullman service was 199, and the company had sent in a bill for $18. It had not been paid and in a bill for $18. It had not been paid and the outcome of the trouble is not clear. It was also claimed that the service rendered by the Pullman Company was not of a very high standard.

Death of Mr. Hawkins Taylor

In Barron county, Kentucky. After trouble with the Indians he finally settled at Keckuk, and was elected to the first legislature. He served in a number of other public places and was a delegate from lowa to the convention of Chicago which nominated Mr. Lincoln for the Presidency, and at his election came to Washington. He has mainly resided here since that time. He was employed for a time in the Post Office Department. epartment. Mr. Taylor has always taken a great in-rest in local affairs.

HELP FOR THE POOR.

Annual Meeting of the Associated Charities of the District.

INTERESTING FACTS IN THE REPORTS.

Good Work Done by the Organization Last Winter.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

ciated Charities was held last evening in the rooms of the central office No. 811 G street northwest. Rev. Dr. Bartlett of the New York Avenue Church presided. There was a good attendance of active workers in the association, who manifested interest in the affairs of the association that room.

Some Interesting Statistics.

The report of the year's doings was read, showing as follows: Six thousand two hundred and fifty calls at central office, of whom 2.97 were white and 3.283 colored. There were 1.216 whites calling for alms born in this city. June 17, 1837, and entered the old volunteer department when a boy, running with the Anacostia company. Subsequently, young Maddox resigned and learned the trade of wheelwright with Andrew J. Joyce. He was a member of company "A." Washington Light Infrastree. wheelwright with Andrew J. Joyce. He was a member of company "A." Washington Light Infantry, and served with that company under the command of Capt. Lem Williams in the three months' service. On the formation of the paid fire department in July, 1861, he was made private in engine company No. 2. In three months after his appointment he was made foreman of his company, which position he filled with credit until 1883, when he left the department, returning December 9, 1876, when he was reappointed in his old company. In 1882 he was promoted to foreman, and in 1882 was made acting assistant chief. He did not like his new position, and in 1887 resigned and went back to his old company as foreman. Foreman Maddox came near losting his life in 1886 at a fire on Capitol Hill, where he was painfully cut on the face and hands by the explosion of a quantity of gasoline. No member of the fire department was loved and respected more than John F. Maddox, and his death is mourned by the entire department. His funeral will take place from his brother's residence, 915 G street southeast. Thursday, November 9, at 2 o'clock p. m. The following members of the fire department who are also members of the Elks, will act as pallbearers: Joseph Parris, chief; Wm. T. Helt, assistant chief; W. T. Shedd, Jas. Moriarty, Thomas Martin, engineers, and James Ragan of the volunteer organization. The Elks and Veteran Firemen will attend the funeral.

THE STANDPIPE TO GO.

The Commissioners Order It to Be Sold for Old Material.

The old standpipe at the head of 16th street will soon be but a memory. street will soon be but a memory.

Today the Commissioners ordered it re moved and sold to the highest bidder, and the work of removal will commence this ject of more complaint than any other thing in the District.

In 1875 Lieut. Hoxie recommended the erection of a standpipe somewhere between 14th and 7th streets to supply all that dislst streets northwest and all east of the Capitol. At that time the residents in that section were crying eagerly for water, and this was thought to be the best solution of the problem. It was not, however, until 1878 that the reservoir was constructed, and the report of Maj. Twining, then Engineer Commissioner of the District, upon this reservoir shows it answered the purpose for which it was intended. At that time complaints were being received against its unsightly appearance and efforts were made to have it abandoned. Maj. Twining in his annual report that year said:

"The standpipe is doing good service for a large portion of the city. I have no hesitation in saying that if it were dispensed with, it would bring down upon the neats of the District governors and the water department employes such a storm of indignation from those who derive benefit from it that there would be no small number of persons advocating to have it rebuilt and put in complete working operation again. It cannot be expected to supply more water than the limit of its capacity."

As the city advanced and 16th street became one of the fashionable residence streets of the city, the protests against the standpipe became more frequent. Delegations appeared before the Commissioners and Congress was appealed to for help.

The concentration of all the forces of the water distributing service at the U street pumping station made the removal of the standpipe possible, and its removal was only a question of time.

The report shows the amount of money received at the central office was $2.531.77, besides food, clothing and fuel. The largest contribution was $500, which was received from one of the professors of the Catholic University.

The treasurer, Mr. M. G. Emery, was not present, but the secretary stated that the association had in bank $3.782.

TRAMPS ROUTED OUT

The New York express train that is scheduled to leave the Baltimore and Potomac depot at 10 p.m. loses some time or account of an extra stop that is now made to rid the train of passengers who pay no fare. The stop is made at the New Jersey avenue yard, and seldom does it happen that at least three or four and sometimes nearly a dozen tramps and others are no found on the platforms of the cars. Objection

"How did you expect to get home was that?"
"I went to see Sanitary Officer Frank and asked for transportation," answered the prisoner, "but he said the appropriation was too low."
"I'll take your personal bonds," said the judge, "and will advise you to go home. But you had better not attempt to beat your way on the train. The 19 o'clock train stops every night and you had better tell what friends you meet that it is dangerous to ride upon it." The two residents were released and told to go home.

HER NARROW ESCAPE.

A Pistol Ball is Fired Into a Young Lady's Bed Room. Last night about 10 o'clock there car near being a homicide committed at the residence of Mr. W. H. Grigsby, No. 413 G street northwest. It is not known whether the affair resulted from a deliberate at-tempt at murder or whether it grew out of an effort on the part of some republican to celebrate the victories that had been an-nounced earlier in the evening. Miss Grigs-by, who is a young lady, was in her room she heard the noise made by a bullet crashing through the window. She was standing near the mantel at the time, and the bullet struck not more than an Inch to the right of the young lady's head. Only one shot was fired, and as there was no shouting at the time, the neighbors think the celebration of the victories at the polis had nothing to do with it.

There is an alley in the rear of the house, and this alley is also in the rear of a row of houses on Washington street, which are occupied by colored persons. As a rule, the little side street is the abode of peace, although there is an occasional disorder requiring the attention of the police.

On Halloween night in Southeast Washington there was a similar affair, only the weapon used was a brick instead of a pistol. It happened at the house of Mrs. Jenkins, No. 538 7th street. Miss Jenkins, her daughter, had been sitting near the front window talking. Another member of the family called her out to the dining room, and she had hardly left the room, when the brick came crashing through the window, just opposite where she had been sitting. Had the missle been thrown a minute earlier the young lady would have been killed or seriously injured. In this case a colored man was seen to throw the brick.

The police have been informed of both cases, but the guilty parties have not been apprehended. In the affair at the residence of Mrs. Jenkins the brick throwing was an evident attempt to murder or injure one of the occupants, and the motive is known.

In Honor of the Justices of the Court of Appeals.

The University Club house, at the corner of 17th and I streets, presented a gala appearance last evening with lights streaming from every window and the music of a stringed orchestra filling the air. The occasion was a reception given in honor of the three justices of the Court of Ameals the three justices of the Court of Appeals of the District, Judge Alvey, Judge Shepable and agreeable place for a reception of this sort could have been found than the handsome home of this prosperous and popular club.

The rooms and halls on the main floor of the club house were tastefully decorated with chrysanthemums, roses and tropical plants. The spacious piazza in the rear of the house was boarded in and hung with rugs, and here was stationed an orchestra, that rendered popular airs throughout the evening. The three justices of the new court, in whose honor the reception was given, stood for an hour or two in the early part of the evening, and the guests were introduced to them in turn, among them being most of the members of the Supreme Court of the District, and many of the leading lawyers of the local bar. In the dining room an elaborate supper was served, with an abundance of liquid refreshments, and as the hours passed by the entertainment became less formal and more enjoyable. Among those who were present were:

Justice Brewer of the United States Supreme Court, Chief Justice Bingham, R. Ross Perry, Henry Wiss Garnett, S. T. Thomas, ex-Commissioner Webb, Col. Jas. G. Payne, Jas. S. Edwards, J. H. LONDON CABMEN.

They Generally Turn in Purses and Valuables Left in Their Hacks. From the Blackburn Times. The just published report of the chief

The just published report of the chief commissioner of metropolitan police contains at least one item for the sincerest congratulations. The commissioner proudly chronicles the high average of honesty among the London cabmen. In the course of last year the public left nearly 1,500 purses in cabs, of which seven contained from 120 to 630, two from 200 to 630 and one for, together with a bag that had in it In all probability the vast bulk of the purses had been left in the cabs by ladies. It is only gentlemen of the old school who carry portmonnaies nowadays, and very elderly gentlemen may occasionally be seen he cabmen to Scotland Yard. eiderly gentlemen may occasionally be seen producing the old silk net and bend purses with rings. Sensible men carry their gold in their waistcoat pockets and their silver in their trousers pockets. But isales, for some occult reason, usually carry their purses in their hands. Were they even to put their portmonnales in their pockets they would incur a great risk of loading them, since the modern feminine pocket is situated in precisely that part of the dress where it should not be, and offers a direct encouragement to thieves.

Curious to relate, ladles moving in the genteelest society were, two generations since, accustomed to carry their gold tied up in a corner of their pocket handker-calefs. A marchioness in one of dearge Sand's novels adopts this practice. Nowadays, it would appear, the usage is confined to female servants.

Is undoubtedly the most troublesome of all tils. Proper attention, in time, will prevent any trouble. But if the tooth has already "gone too far" it'll need treating before filling, we can give it that treatment in a manner most agree-able to the patient and very success-rilly. The filling will be faultless. Our pathless method of extracting teeth is attracting attention all over town, not only on account of its being pathless, but because it's safe and doesn't cause sleep.
